As I Leave Ardmore

As I leave Ardmore, my school so dear,
I wonder what's coming to me next year.
Are my teachers as I go too glad?
For after all I've been pretty bad.
In the first grade I was meek and mild,
But came the second, I nearly went wild.
In the third, I tried to settle down,
But in the fourth, I just bounced around.
The fifth grade was very very grand,
In the sixth I tried to join the band.
Oh! But the seventh grade was the best,
For with dear teachers we were blessed.
And all my friends were very sweet,
I guess the seventh couldn't be beat.
Ardmore, dear Ardmore, I now say goodby,
But I shall remember you till I die.

My Last Day

I came to Ardmore every day,
At least to me it seemed that way,
I was like any student in the school,
I tried to test each teacher's rule.
Though maybe I didn't try my best,
I was average, like all the rest.
Well, not average, I'll have to tell,
For truthfully I could not spell.
I did o.k. till the going got rough,
And the teachers seemed a little tough;
My grades were fair, but sometimes lower,
Over some report cards I almost swore.
Now since it's all over, I guess I'm glad,
But, to tell the truth, I believe I'm sad.
Like all the rest I'm really down,
Today I can hardly make a sound.
I shall wave at the school to which I have been,
Never to return as a student again.
